

ShopEase Warranty Policy

Document Type: Customer Support Policy

Company: ShopEase

Policy Version: 1.0

Effective Date: September 30, 2026

1. Overview

ShopEase provides warranty-related support for eligible products according to the warranty terms associated with each product.

Warranty coverage depends on the product, manufacturer, applicable warranty period, and conditions of use.

This policy describes the general warranty support process. Product-specific warranty terms may differ.

2. Warranty Coverage

A product may be covered by a manufacturer's warranty, a ShopEase-provided warranty, or another applicable warranty arrangement.

Warranty coverage may include the repair or replacement of eligible products that develop qualifying manufacturing defects during the applicable warranty period.

The exact coverage depends on the product's warranty terms.

A warranty does not automatically cover every problem that occurs after a product is purchased.

3. Warranty Period

The warranty period varies by product and may be specified by the manufacturer or the applicable ShopEase product listing.

Customers should check the warranty information associated with their product to determine the applicable duration.

The warranty period may begin on the purchase date, delivery date, or another date specified in the applicable warranty terms.

The ShopEase support assistant must not invent a warranty duration when the relevant product information is unavailable.

4. Conditions for Warranty Claims

A warranty claim may be considered when:

- The product is covered by an applicable warranty.
- The claim is made within the relevant warranty period.
- The reported issue falls within the warranty coverage.
- The customer provides the information required to verify the purchase and product.
- The product satisfies the applicable warranty conditions.

Submitting a claim does not guarantee that it will be approved.

5. Problems That May Not Be Covered

Depending on the applicable warranty terms, coverage may exclude:

- Accidental damage.
- Damage caused by misuse or improper handling.
- Damage caused by unauthorized repairs or modifications.
- Normal wear and tear.
- Cosmetic damage that does not qualify under the warranty.
- Problems caused by failure to follow product instructions.
- Consumable components excluded by the applicable warranty.
- Claims submitted outside the warranty period.

These exclusions are examples of common warranty conditions. The actual exclusions for a specific product must be checked against its applicable warranty terms.

6. Information Required for a Warranty Claim

Customers requesting warranty assistance may need to provide:

- Order ID or proof of purchase.
- Product name and model, where applicable.
- A description of the problem.
- The approximate date the problem began.
- Photographs or videos, if requested.
- Serial number or other product identification, where applicable.

Additional information may be requested depending on the product and the nature of the issue.

7. How to Request Warranty Support

Customers can request warranty assistance by following these steps:

1. Locate the relevant order or proof of purchase.
2. Check the product's warranty information.
3. Contact ShopEase support with the order ID and a description of the issue.
4. Provide any additional information requested.
5. Follow the instructions provided for assessment, repair, replacement, or further investigation.

The support team will review the request according to the applicable warranty terms.

8. Warranty Assessment

A product may require inspection or technical assessment before a warranty decision is made.

The assessment may determine:

- Whether the product is within the warranty period.
- Whether the reported issue is covered.
- Whether the product requires repair or replacement.
- Whether additional information is needed.

The final decision depends on the applicable warranty terms and the assessment results.

9. Repair and Replacement

If a warranty claim is approved, the available resolution may include repair, replacement, or another remedy permitted by the applicable warranty terms.

The available resolution may depend on product availability, the nature of the issue, manufacturer procedures, and the specific warranty arrangement.

The support assistant must not promise a repair or replacement before the claim has been assessed and approved.

10. Warranty and Returns Are Different

A return request and a warranty claim are separate processes.

A return generally concerns whether a product can be sent back under the applicable return policy.

A warranty claim concerns whether a product qualifies for assistance under its warranty terms.

A product that is no longer eligible for a standard return may still have warranty coverage, depending on the product and applicable terms.

Similarly, a product being within its return period does not automatically establish that a warranty claim has been approved.

11. Warranty and Refunds

Warranty support does not automatically entitle a customer to a refund.

The available resolution depends on the applicable warranty terms and the outcome of the claim assessment.

If a refund is approved under an applicable policy or resolution process, refund processing follows the ShopEase Refund Policy.

12. Product-Specific Warranty Questions

The general warranty policy can answer questions such as:

- "What is a warranty claim?"
- "How do I request warranty support?"
- "What information do I need to provide?"
- "Does a warranty always cover accidental damage?"
- "What is the difference between a return and a warranty claim?"

However, questions such as the following require product- or order-specific information:

- "Is my product still under warranty?"
- "How long is the warranty for my headphones?"
- "Has my warranty claim been approved?"
- "When will my product be repaired?"

The ShopEase support assistant must check the relevant product, order, or support information instead of guessing.

13. Warranty Claim Status

Customers can contact ShopEase support to check the status of a submitted warranty claim.

Depending on the available system, claim statuses may include:

- Submitted: The claim has been received.
- Under Review: The claim is being assessed.

- Approved: The claim has been approved for the specified resolution.
- Rejected: The claim does not qualify under the applicable conditions.
- Resolved: The approved resolution has been completed.

These are illustrative statuses. The actual status of a specific claim must be retrieved from the applicable support system.

14. Contacting Support

Customers should contact ShopEase support when:

- They need clarification about product warranty terms.
- They want to submit a warranty claim.
- They need an update on an existing claim.
- Their product has a problem that may qualify for warranty assistance.
- They disagree with or need clarification about a warranty assessment.

Support may request the order ID, product details, and other relevant information.

15. Policy Updates

ShopEase may update its warranty support procedures.

Manufacturer warranty terms and product-specific conditions may also change independently.

The applicable product warranty information should be checked when determining coverage for a specific product.

16. Examples

Example 1 — General Warranty Question

Customer: "What is a warranty claim?"

Policy: A warranty claim is a request for assistance with a product problem under the applicable warranty terms. The product and issue must qualify for coverage.

Example 2 — Accidental Damage

Customer: "Will my warranty cover accidental damage?"

Policy: Accidental damage may be excluded, depending on the applicable warranty terms. The specific product coverage must be checked.

Example 3 — Specific Product

Customer: "Is my order ORD1001 still under warranty?"

Policy: The general policy cannot determine the warranty status of a specific order. The system must check the product's warranty duration and relevant purchase or delivery information.

Example 4 — Claim Status

Customer: "Has my warranty claim been approved?"

Policy: The assistant must retrieve the actual warranty claim status from the applicable support system rather than guessing.

Example 5 — Return or Warranty

Customer: "My headphones stopped working after the return period. Can I get help?"

Policy: The customer may still qualify for warranty assistance if the product is covered by an applicable warranty. The product-specific warranty terms must be checked.
